GROWERS TOLD OF TREATMENT FOR INSECTS

Approved Methods of Fighting Citrus
Pests Given

Two hundred ranchers gathered in the auditorium of Covina high school Friday afternoon to listen to reports from state and county agricultural experts on the best methods of combating the present infestation of the citrus orchards with black scale and other insect pests.

The specific subjects dealt with included "Scale Control for 1934," by Howard Wilcomb, deputy agricultural commissioner, Los Angeles county; "Control of the Red Spider and Orange Worm," by Dr. A. W. Boyce of the state citrus experimental station, Riverside; and "The Relationship of Citrus Pest Control to Production," by Walter Ebeling, also a state expert.

This last report, of special interest to the growers present, dealt with the comparative results secured in recent experiments, as to the increased production of merchantable fruit per tree by the two methods of pest control, fumigation and spray.

At the close of the program the growers present were furnished a typed report containing recommendations for the treatment of the groves in the Covina district under present conditions, as follows:

ORANGES
Fumigation using 18cc dosage is the preferred treatment in those orchards where black scale can be controlled by this method. In orchards where fumigation has not been satisfactory, 2 per cent light medium oil emulsion, or one and two-thirds per cent emulsible oil or No. 3 tank mixture is recommended. In some groves it may be necessary to apply two treatments in order to secure adequate control, and in such instances an early fumigation, followed by an oil or lime-sulfur spray, is advisable. If lime-sulfur and oil is used it should be delayed until November in order to avoid as much as possible the hazard of unfavorable weather.

Where black and red scale both are to be controlled the early fumigation using 18cc is recommended. For red scale only use 20cc dosage as soon as the trees and fruit will stand it. Fumigation is the only dependable single treatment for red scale control.

For control of red spider an oil spray or selicide combination may be used.

LEMONS
Very light infestations of red scale on lemons may be held over until winter fumigation by using 22 to 24cc dosage. Heavy infestations should be fumigated as soon as the trees will stand a 20cc dosage. Orchards having a heavy summer infestation should receive a spray and fumigation combination treatment using a one per cent medium oil emulsion or one and two-thirds per cent emulsible oil or No. 3 tank mixture, followed in about a week or ten days with at least 20cc dosage fumigation. Spraying alone cannot be recommended for red scale control.

Where both black and red scale are a problem in lemons an early fumigation using 20cc dosage as soon as the trees will stand it is recommended. In such instances where the scale infestations are heavy the above combination treatment should be used.

For control of red spider an oil spray or selicide combination may be used.

Merchants Lose Tight Game to Pomona, 6-5

In one of the most hard-fought, nightball games ever played on the local park diamond, Pomona on Tuesday evening was able, with the aid of breaks at the right time, and with a couple of well-placed bunts, to take the long end of a ten-inning game with the Covina Merchants.

From the very first pitch the game was on edge, with Lionel Brown hurling his usual brand of ball. For six innings he allowed no hits and no runs, registering thirteen strikeouts.

In the opening frame Covina tallied three runs and the score remained the same until the last half of the seventh, when Pomona, with

$3000 Allocated for Surfacing of Citrus

Allocation of $3000 was made available to the city of Covina this week for the resurfacing of Citrus avenue, by action of the county board of supervisors.

The work is to be performed by the city, and will provide for the surfacing of Citrus avenue from the north to the south city limits. Work must be started within sixty days, under terms of the resolution adopted on motion of Supervisor Roger W. Jessup, chairman of the board's roads and highways committee.

The $3000 is to come from the first supervisorial district's share of the 1934-35 gasoline tax funds.

Roger Jaroch Dies After Illness From Bone Infection

The death occurred on Monday evening in a Los Angeles hospital of Roger Lawrence Jaroch, thirteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Jaroch of Holt avenue in West Covina. Death followed a ten-days' illness caused by a bone infection.

Two operations were performed in an effort to save the boy's life. Services will be held today (Friday) at 2:30 at the chapel of the Christians and Moore mortuary, and interment will be held at Rose Hills.

Dr. George Witte of Hollywood, an old-time family friend, will officiate at the service, and Mrs. Hazel Foster, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Kranz, will sing vocal selections.

Pallbearers will include C. W. Robinson of Rivera, C. G. Willard of Monrovia, M. H. Kimball of Alhambra, A. G. Salter of Pomona, and Fred Ashton and Charles Kranz of West Covina.

The deceased boy leaves to mourn his loss, besides his father and mother, a brother, Gordon, maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Taschner, and Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Taschner of Hemet.

Roger was born March 2, 1922, in Los Angeles. He was a member of the graduating class of the West Covina grammar school in June of this year. He devoted much of his time to the radio and was interested in short-wave experiments, being a member of the San Gabriel Valley Short-Wave Club. A popular youngster, his amiable personality will be missed among his many friends.

Rotarians Listen to Talk on Politics

J. L. Matthews, veteran political campaigner, was the speaker at the Rotary luncheon meeting Thursday, his subject being "The Why and Wherefore of Present Political Methods," in which he dwelt on the problems faced in the recent gubernatorial campaign which he directed from the Los Angeles headquarters.

"I learned more about politics and political methods in the thirty minutes Mr. Matthews spoke than I have ever known before," said Dr. R. P. Miller, Rotary president, after the meeting, "and it was one of the most instructive and entertaining talks I have listened to in a long time. The speaker received an ovation at the conclusion of his address that indicated he had interested the other members as much as he did me."

Merchants Offering Trade Inducements

Many special inducements for buyers are being offered in Covina for Monday afternoon, August 5, practically all of the stores of the city having some reduction in price on seasonal merchandise for the occasion. The Argus carries a page of these bargains, but all of the merchants of the city extend a cordial invitation to shoppers to visit their store and make themselves at home during the afternoon.

CAMP IN SIERRA

Mr. and Mrs. Ethan Scofield of Rowland avenue have returned from a two-weeks' vacation with Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Lemke of Placencia. The two couples packed into Woods lake in the high Sierra, over Sawmill pass above Independence, and spent the time fishing and camping.

all their fans rising for the stretch, started a rally that was almost a riot. The inning was full of arguments and protests on almost every play, and Pomona, with two lucky and well-placed bunts and two or three other hits, tied the score.

Covina made two more runs in its half of the next inning, taking the lead 5 to 3, but Pomona made two more scores in the eighth, tying the score. Neither team scored in the ninth.

In the tenth Pomona was able to get to Brown for the winning run. Pomona has won seven straight games in the second half of the American league series.

REBUILDING OF THEATER NOW IN PROGRESS

Business Concerns in Block Change
Locations

Work was started this week on the rebuilding of the Covina theater, the alterations, it is expected, to take about two months to complete. The real estate office of A. J. Glines has been used for the Citrus avenue entrance to the upper floor of the Reed building, this change being now about completed. Mr. Glines has moved to room number eight in the same building.

The remodeled theater, according to Dr. J. D. Reed, owner of the building, will be a credit to the community, just as the old one was when it was first made into a theater. The seating capacity will be almost doubled by the addition of the present office rooms at the front of the building into a large gallery, with the stairway leading from the main lobby of the theater. The foyer is to be widened and shortened, making room for several rows of loge seats. The main floor is to be raised, with a deeper slope so as to give a clearer view of the screen from all parts of the house.

Beauty is to be one of the features of the new theater, the entire front to be rebuilt and replaced in keeping with the most up-to-date entrance features now in vogue in motion picture houses in the larger cities. Neon lighting will add to the attractiveness of the front, and the titles of films showing also will be displayed with neon lights. The interior of the building is to be entirely redecorated, and every convenience for the comfort of theatergoers will be provided, including the latest in ventilating systems.

The Candy Box will be closed this week, as this room will become part of the theater lobby. Harry Niles, proprietor of the confectionery and lunch room, will take a vacation of a month before reopening at some other location, which has not yet been selected, three of which he is now considering.

Estimated costs of the remodeling will be in excess of $10,000. Local labor only is being employed on the work.

Church Members Honor Pastor

Members of the Church of the Brethren and other friends of Rev. Leland S. Brubaker gathered at the church lawn last Friday evening in a reception in his honor, the pastor of the local church having just returned from a mission inspection tour in which he covered 45,000 miles and was gone for eleven months.

No formal program was carried out for the evening, the guests coming and going all the while. Mr. Brubaker gave a short talk in which he expressed his pleasure in being back home and meeting his many friends, and said that in all his travels around the world he had not seen a place where he would rather live than Covina. Refreshments of cake and punch were served by the women of the young married people's class.

Voorhis Represents Epic Plan District

Jerry Voorhis of San Dimas, who was a candidate at the last election for state assembly, and who was defeated by H. J. Evans of Monrovia, has been elected a member of the board of the End Poverty League, Inc., under the leadership of Upton Sinclair, founder of the Epic movement, who is now in New York. Mr. Voorhis represents the forty-ninth district, which comprises Monrovia, Duarte and Arcadia. With eighteen other board members, he took office on Saturday.

WOMEN MOTOR NORTH

Mrs. S. S. Aschenbrenner and Mrs. Sarah Yoder returned Thursday last week from a five-weeks' motor trip north. Mrs. Yoder visited with relatives and friends in Washington, while Mrs. Aschenbrenner remained in Oregon, where she visited with relatives and friends in Portland, Salem, Newport, and at Nye Beach. Enroute they stopped over for two days each way with Mrs. Aschenbrenner's daughter, Mrs. Walter Grimmesey, and family in Oakland.

HOME AGAIN!

(Note.)—Rev. Leland S. Brubaker, pastor of the local Church of the Brethren, returned last weekend after a trip around the world, having been sent by the mission board of the national denomination to Africa, India and the Orient to inspect the mission establishments in those countries. He contributes the following article in regard to his trip and in appreciation of his return.

By LELAND S. BRUBAKER

After being away from Covina for over eleven months there is a great joy in being home again. During the time that we were gone we traveled over 44,000 miles by boat, train, auto, oxcart, donkey, horseback, and on foot. Three and a half months were spent on the water alone. And so to be back home where you feel settled again is one of the finest things of the entire trip.

There are a few outstanding observations with which we have been impressed during this trip. First, this old world is rather a small place feeling of being brought closer together there also comes this other thought, that we need to be most careful how we carry on if we are to construct a world that is the very best possible. We need very much to get better acquainted with our neighbors. A better understanding of their problems will not only be helpful to them, but will also be very beneficial to us.

We were studying missions especially, and I am happy to say that the missionaries who are carrying on the work of the church in these foreign lands are of high standard. They have earned for themselves a reputation of high esteem and are making real contributions not only in religious, but also in secular lines. We have nothing to be ashamed of from this angle and we ought to support them with all of our resources. It is difficult to give even a small idea of the tremendous drive of missions in shaping the civilization of these backward peoples. I feel sure that we shall live to see the day when we shall feel that this work has been one of the saving factors in world unity.

The church is to be seen emerging in all of these lands. The native people are beginning to feel that it is their church and are more and more supporting its work and are receiving from it more of the real joy of service. We can hardly imagine the change that is needed in a man's life when he turns from his superstitions and fears to a way of life that is based upon truth and goodness. Hospitals, schools and other institutions are fruits of the church, but they do not compare with the real joy of the church itself. This is being felt more keenly all the time by these people, and because of this the church is growing rapidly at the present time.

One cannot but be impressed with the fact that there is still a great work to be done. These countries have great areas that have as yet been untouched by the message of the Christian church. We must carry on in even a greater way than before if we are to do our part in shaping the destiny of this old world. The truth of this is brought home to us when we notice that hot spots over the world today—South Africa with its racial problem, Europe with its tangled associations, and the far east with its intense nationalistic hatreds—something is needed and needed badly, and we believe the church as an institution can furnish the right principles.

We are living in the garden spot of the world. At no time in all of my trip did I see a place that can compare with our little city. I have wondered since home if we all appreciate it as we should. If not, go to the backward countries for awhile and you will come back with nothing but praise. I'm glad to be home again!

after all. At no time were we so far away but what a cable would reach home in a few hours, and many times would reach America before we had sent it because of the difference in the time schedule.

News from all over the world may be secured in almost any of the city newspapers. We are becoming more and more closely bound together by communication and transportation. And what one part of the world does affects many other places. With this

Recreation Parade to Be Held Here This Afternoon

Miss Mary Raftery, local playground director, announces that interest is being shown in preparation for the recreation parade which will be participated in by the children of Covina and the valley this afternoon. The parade will start promptly at 2 o'clock, and the line of march will be east on Badillo street from the city park, north on Citrus avenue to the San Bernardino road, and west on San Bernardino to the city park.

The children are asked to decorate their bicycles, kiddie cars, scooters, doll carriages, or anything on wheels, and join in the fun. A feature of the parade will be the roller skaters.

Miss Raftery, who is giving attention to the aquatic sports at the city plunge, announces the lifesaving classes will be held every Monday at 9 a.m. The hour for the adult swimming class has been changed to 4 o'clock. She is hoping that more registrations may be had by those desiring to participate in the water pageant to be held on Friday, August 16.

Townsend Clubs to Hold Picnic

Sunday there will be a mass meeting sponsored by the Townsend clubs, in the city park, Monterey Park, opening with a basket picnic lunch at 12:30 and continuing through the afternoon. A program of entertainment, music and addresses has been prepared. Townsend clubs of the San Gabriel valley have been invited and members are asked to come and bring friends.

CHILDREN PERFORM

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hanes and three children of Azusa avenue and Marilyn Mahlin of Baldwin Park left yesterday for a few days' visit to the exposition at San Diego. Yesterday evening the three Hanes children and Marilyn Mahlin took part in the performance at the exposition of the Rue Tyler Rhythm Kiddies band, of which they are members.

Mrs. Hutchison Passes On After Weeks of Illness

Christian Science services were read Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. W. D. Brown at the chapel of Custer, Christiansen & Moore for Mrs. Carrie J. Hutchison, wife of Noah Hutchison, who passed away early Monday morning following an illness of three weeks at her home on Italia street. "Abide With Me" was the vocal selection rendered during the chapel services by Sara Meek Zug.

Mrs. Hutchison was born in Kansas, coming to Covina with her husband and son and daughter in 1916, residing previous to that time in San Diego county. She was a member of the Mother Church of Christ Scientist and active in its interests. She leaves, besides her husband, who is an employee of the city, a son, Glenn, connected with the Covina Argus, a daughter, Miss Hazel, who resides at home, and two sisters, Mrs. J. W. Hawley of San Diego and Mrs. William Phillips of Kansas.

The quantities of beautiful floral offerings bespoke the affection of friends and neighbors, who accompanied the remains to its resting place in Rose Hills Memorial park, near Whittier. Acting as pallbearers were James Cannon, Charles Zug, George Meek, Cecil Freeman, Louis Hodges and Will Kridler.

Open House Held at Masonic Home

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Downen, the former superintendent of the Masonic Home on East Badillo street, held open house for the alumni of the home on Sunday, with a large number of former students and their families spending the day renewing old friendships. The afternoon was spent swimming and in games, followed by a picnic supper served on the grounds. Those from Covina who attended were Mrs. Bill Temple, Mrs. Jack Tripp, and Miss Mary Raftery.

Mrs. Florence Hamlin of Los Angeles is a guest this week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hart on West Center street.

CITY TEAM TO JOIN IN BALL TOURNAMENT

B. Tallman to Manage
Covina Contestants
in Examiner Race

Bob Tallman will be the manager of the Covina amateur softball team to be entered in the southern softball tournament beginning September 4, providing his team makes the preliminary finals.

The tournament is being sponsored by the Los Angeles Examiner and other southern California newspapers, with Matt Gallagher, Examiner sports writer, directing and the trophies to be presented by William Randolph Hearst.

At a meeting held in the Billmore hotel in Los Angeles Monday night the rules governing the tournament were adopted, most of the discussion centering on whether players under contract with the American or National nightball leagues would be allowed to play, the final decision being that all such players under contract or playing in league games during the year or the current season should be barred. Fifteen players will be allowed each club entering and the names of all players must be in the hands of Matt Gallagher by August 20.

That the tournament will be one of the best of the season is shown by the interest that is already being taken. Nearly one thousand teams are being groomed for entry in the finals, the Los Angeles playground department alone having 500 teams in preparation, with only sixty-four teams to be selected to take part in the city playoff preliminary to the tournament, which has been limited to thirty-two teams, with a possibility of this number being increased to forty teams because of the large number of smaller districts outside of the metropolitan area desiring representation in the final championship test. Gallagher has already been notified that there will be teams entered in the tournament from Santa Barbara to San Diego. This is the second tournament staged by the Examiner, Riverside being the winner last fall. The Covina team entered at that time lost the first game to Alhambra, thus being eliminated from the balance of the tournament.

Because of many of the Covina players being signed up with the American league, and thus being barred as amateurs, Manager "Bob" Tallman is busy working out his available material in order to have his entry list ready by August 20. Several games are scheduled for the next two weeks, most of them being outside of town in order to accustom his players to strange fields.

Covina Chiropractor Attending Convention

Dr. A. G. Gilbert, Covina chiropractor, is attending the fortieth anniversary convention of the National Chiropractic association being held this week at the Hollywood Roosevelt hotel. Dr. Gilbert was a member of the reception committee which met the special trains carrying delegates from the east, most of which arrived Sunday morning. The convention will continue until Friday night.

Plans for a center of chiropractic research and instruction, to be located possibly at Los Angeles, were outlined before the opening meeting of the convention.

Dr. J. H. Durham of Louisville, Kentucky, chairman of the association's board of directors, said the research institution would be financed by government funds, public subscription and the bid of the city most interested in getting it.

Party Returns From Trip to Oregon

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Griffiths of Holt avenue, accompanied by Mrs. Laura Sparks of Santa Monica, sister of Mrs. Griffiths, returned to their homes the latter part of the week from a two-weeks' motor trip up the coast as far north as Astoria, Oregon.

In Cloverdale the party visited with Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Love and accompanied by the latter spent Saturday and Sunday in Portland with Mrs. Love's daughter, Mrs. Henry Clay Warren. Mr. and Mrs. Griffiths voiced their interest in the construction of seven bridges spanning the larger rivers in the north, disbanding the old ferries. Enroute on the return trip brief stops were made in San Francisco.

Lions Home From Convention at Mexico City

Don Jenks of East Puente street and James Hodges of East Badillo street returned Tuesday from a trip to Mexico City, where they attended the nineteenth annual convention of the International Association of Lions club as the delegates of the Covina club. Mr. Jenks is president of the local club and Mr. Hodges is the immediate past-president.

The trip was made by special train from Los Angeles, with two hundred on the train, which was air-cooled and carried every comfort for the convenience of passengers during the entire convention, including a complete commissary.

On account of the political unrest in Mexico it was feared that the convention might be affected, but both of the Covina men stated that there was nothing to mar the pleasure of the trip and the treatment received by the people of Mexico was cordial and that every effort was made to give the visitors a favorable impression of the country.

Richard J. Osembaugh of Denver was elected president of the international association. Mr. Osembaugh has been president of the Denver Lions club, district governor of Colorado Lions clubs, became a member of the international board of directors in 1930, served two years, and was elevated to the third vice-presidency in 1932. He rose successively through the three vice-presidencies and was unanimously voted into the highest office of the association at the Mexico City meeting by the accredited delegates, representing 80,000 Lions.

The presiding officer of the convention was Vincent C. Hassall of Omaha, Nebraska, 1934-35 president of the association. In turning over the gavel to the incoming president Mr. Hassall assured him of his personal support for the year. The association under president Hassall registered a considerable gain in membership, and increased its number of clubs to the total of 2710. The clubs in the association during the year registered a total of 20,789 separate activities, such as the construction of playgrounds, the supplying of safety devices, and community efforts in many other fields. This is the first time that the gross figures have risen above the 20,000 mark.

Grocery Advertising Stimulates Trade

The extensive advertising campaign started last week by the Taylor's store brought a decided increase in business, according to Woodward Core, manager of the Covina store. "We had a very satisfactory increase over last week's business," Core told an Argus reporter Monday, "and we expect to keep on increasing our sales. Our store has been rearranged to give our customers more efficient service, and recent improvements in our marketing arrangements have enabled us to provide a higher grade of produce fresh from the fields each morning."

Orange Shipments in Week Continue Large

Although meeting stiff competition from the shipments of deciduous fruits, now nearing their peak on eastern markets, California oranges, which showed a slight gain last week, are expected to hold their own during the current six-day period and shipments will continue large.

Lenons, however, lost their previous week's gains and were down last week to an average of $5.95 per box. Oranges, with a gain of six cents per box to an average of $3.51 for the week, maintained the same volume of sales as for the previous week. The smaller sizes showed a loss. The importance of strict observance of prorate regulations by everyone, is being stressed by some of the leading growers, the California Fruit Growers Exchange reported. They point out that it is in the interest of every grower that nothing be done to disturb the orderly distribution of the big Valencia crop.

IMPROVEMENTS TAKE PLACE ON CITRUS AVENUE

Defective Sidewalks
Repaired by S.E.R.A.
Workmen

Citrus avenue has taken on a look of real prosperity this week. Assistant City Engineer Glenn Crawford and his crew of S.E.R.A. workers are tearing out all the defective sidewalks and replacing them with new concrete, in many places the entire walk being relaid.

All this is being done at no cost to the city except for material costs, the government furnishing all labor and equipment. The work will be continued until all defective walks on the avenue are replaced.

The alterations on the Covina theater is, of course, the project that is attracting the most attention, but the removal of the wooden awning over the Hurley hardware store is running it a close second, with probably more comment than any of the other work on the street, this being one of the oldest landmarks of the early business life of Covina to give way to the march of progress.

Old-timers vary in their statements of when the old wooden covering was first built, some saying that it had been there for more than forty years and others placing it at thirty years, with the majority placing it at the forty-year period. One expression in which all of the interested-by-standers agree is that it will make a decided change in the appearance of the business district.

Several changes on Citrus avenue are being made next week. At least two new business houses will be opened in a short time, Mrs. Victoria Lyons with the Lyons Giant Malted Milk shop in the Hurley building at 140 North Citrus, where extensive alterations are being made and fixtures installed preparatory to the formal opening next week.

At 220 North Citrus a women's apparel shop is to be opened in a short time by two women from Los Angeles, who will feature the better class of dresses and wearing apparel, formal announcement of which will be made within a short time.

One of the finest store rooms in the city is rapidly nearing completion and within the month Joe Cornet will reopen his five, ten and twenty-five cent store with a complete new stock. The building, formerly occupied by the Alpha Beta market, has been completely rebuilt, with full plate glass windows to the ceiling in the rear as well as the front, and the latest type of display counters are now being installed.

Thorman Returns to Local Barber Shop

Henry Thorman, who sold his barber shop interests in Covina several months ago and moved to Los Angeles, has returned to this city and this week purchased a half interest in the Wells and Oakley shop at 108 East Badillo street. C. H. Oakley retiring from the business, which after Monday will be known under the firm name of Wells and Thorman, Frank Wells continuing as an active partner with Mr. Thorman.

MOTOR TO TAHOE

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Spangler and two sons, Lowell and Mac, of Adams park, returned Thursday of last week from a two-weeks' motor trip north. Enroute the party stopped over in Salinas to visit with relatives and friends, and after joining Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Simon of San Jose the party motored to Lake Tahoe, where they stayed for a week.

Orange Shipments in Week Continue Large

Although meeting stiff competition from the shipments of deciduous fruits, now nearing their peak on eastern markets, California oranges, which showed a slight gain last week, are expected to hold their own during the current six-day period and shipments will continue large.

The importance of strict observance of prorate regulations by everyone, is being stressed by some of the leading growers, the California Fruit Growers Exchange reported. They point out that it is in the interest of every grower that nothing be done to disturb the orderly distribution of the big Valencia crop.

The grapefruit market was lower last week, particularly on off-quality fruit.

The growers' advisory committee of the California-Arizona citrus marketing agreement has allocated this week's prorate as follows: 1500 cases southern California Valencia, 150 cases southern California grapefruit, and ten cases central California grapefruit.

HOLD YOUR FAITH

You have troubles now, and to you it seems they have blasted all your early dreams; You have been so brave thru every trial

And now you long to rest a while, From burdens and worries to be free, To be as happy as you used to be. You cannot see why the hand of fate

Has been so cruel to you of late, Why all your good has been in vain And has brought you only grief and pain; You have reached, you think, the bitter end,

But you are wrong in thinking this, my friend.

Just when it seems you can't go on There will come a brighter, clearer dawn

To scatter away the clouds of gloom, Causing your faith and hope to bloom;

Again your way will be bright and clear And all your troubles will disappear.

So just meet life with a smile each day, Knowing that God in His own good way

Will lead you free from fear and doubt, And will take the burdens you fret about;

Stick to the faith that has held you true And brighter days will come to you.

—W. E. W.

Postmaster Bill Nye isn't speaking to us for a few days. We told him the other day that we had been enjoying his vacation.

One reason people like Covina is because it is so quiet in the evening. During the day there are so many cars parked on Citrus avenue that strangers exclaim, "My! what a busy town, let's open a store here." But in the evening it is different. Even the wild animals know about it. One night last week Glenn Young saw a strange animal in front of the Sawyer furniture store and after making sure that it did not have a white stripe down its back, he chased it into a corner and caught it. Now, if he is a real southerner, he will have some sweet laters and possum.

Speaking of wild animals, one of our printer friends went to the fair a couple of weeks ago and visited the nudist colony, just out of curiosity, he said, and was telling us all about it. "It was a beautiful place," he said, "they had it all fixed up with shrubs and plants and even had bearskin rugs scattered around on the ground." Wonder what else he would expect but bare skins in a nudist colony!

The following appeared in Ed Anasworth's column, "Along El Camino Real," in the Los Angeles Times last week:

COVINA, July 21.—This little city more than any other, probably, typifies the orange industry.

It thinks, eats, lives, breathes oranges.

Its shady palm-lined streets and lanes are yellow with them. If you should take away the oranges all that would be left of Covina would be Louis Matthews, the veteran publisher and political sage, a couple of brick business buildings and the cemetery.

The rest would just fade away into nothingness.

It's such a nice little place that personally I'm playing the price of oranges will go high and make everybody rich out there!

We have often read Ed's column and wondered if he had ever heard of Covina. And, Eddie boy, you are right in all you say except that there is no cemetery within the confines of Covina. We are so healthy out here that we don't need any. And another thing, you could never get Louie to say here if you took the Henry club, chamber of commerce and the Republican party away along with the oranges.

Speaking of Louie, he got optimistic last Saturday. He couldn't see why he should wear both suspenders and belt. "If Bill can go without suspenders, I can," says he. But now he is back to his old suspenders. It was a good thing when he was behind the office counter when the accident happened.

Ed Hubbard was all het up Monday. He went to the bank to get some change and in the lot was ten dollars' worth of 50-cent pieces in a roll marked "Sears, Roebuck & Co." He jumped all over the bank officials for sending to a mail order house for their money and it took them quite a while to explain all about how these rolls are made up for deposit and have the name of the depositor on them. Of course Ed knew all about this, but he had a good time with his lecture on "trade in Covina."

Hank Thorman sold out and moved to Los Angeles a couple of months ago and now he is back again. It just proves that once you

Catholic Church Barbecue to Be Held at Rowland

A barbecue sponsored by the Catholic church of Covina and Baldwin Park, to be held at the Rowland ranch, east of Pucite, is announced for August 11. The barbecue last year was so successful that committees have been working with keen anticipation as to the program, the food and the attendance. Several notable guests have promised to attend and the ticket sale is progressing.

Harry Schultz of Baldwin Park is serving as general chairman, with E. Conlon, R. Brunet, Porter Kerckhoff in charge of the tickets. Mrs. B. Crites of Baldwin Park and Mrs. G. Wolfinger and Mrs. M. Burnett of Covina are in charge of the dinner arrangements. Mrs. E. Ott is superintending the serving. A committee planning the games and recreation includes Messrs. Ott, Main, and Zelinski. Mrs. O'Hara and Mrs. Main are planning the entertainment.

Ben Turpin, motion picture comedian, will be on the program with a group of his cinema friends. Baby Alice, recently signed with Paramount, will be heard in songs. Rue Tyler's Romeros will be another feature.

Assemblyman Godfrey Andreas, king of barbecues, will prepare the food after the appetizing fashion of last year. Father Fitzgerald states that the general public is invited to attend the program. The Rowland ranch is three and one-half miles east of Puente, and the road will be signed for directions.

Chevrolet Plans for Another Big Year in 1936

That 1936 will be another volume production year in the automotive industry was indicated by M. E. Coyle, president of the Chevrolet Motor company, when the motor executive announced during his trip in southern California that Chevrolet is greatly expanding its production facilities for the coming year.

Mr. Coyle and W. E. Holler, vice-president and general sales manager, spent five days visiting southern California dealers and holding sales meetings, coming to this region from Detroit because of the importance of the coast market.

Eleven major assembly plants, twelve manufacturing plants and forty parts warehouses, spotted strategically throughout the nation, are under the direct supervision of Mr. Coyle. The expansion program of Chevrolet, in anticipation of the increased demand expected for Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks next year, is affecting all of the company's manufacturing facilities, Mr. Coyle said.

Sales figures announced by the visiting executives during their visit revealed that automobile sales are holding up this year at a high level, month after month, instead of diminishing after reaching their peak in the spring.

live in Covina you will never be satisfied anywhere else.

George Peden is back from his vacation, feeling finer than a fiddle. Of course his first act after he got back was to pull a fast one on us. He invited us down to his house to eat a trout dinner Monday night, when he knew very well that we were attending a meeting in Los Angeles that night. There is some consolation in knowing that as soon as some customer comes in and tells him about the fine fishing off in the mountains George will begin immediately to feel the need of another vacation.

Last summer Martin Hohman spent his vacation at the home of his brother-in-law in Oregon. While he was there he trimmed a cherry tree. Recently Mrs. Zeb Ames received a letter from her brother saying that the cherries were so big that his wife had to quarter them before she could get them in a Mason jar. Wonder what would happen if Martin trimmed an orange tree?

Those who will attend the opening week of camp from here will be Marjorie Ward, Ann Ingalls, Joyce and Marilyn Bennett, Sheila Grantham, Geraldine Strickland, Lorna Carl, Phyllis Voulis, Louise de Noyon, Charlotte Boyles, Barbara Gail, Elaine Beltman, Margaret Allen, Verdina Feist, and Eleanor Egly.

Capacity Audience Listens to Program at Echo Bowl

An audience that nearly exceeded the capacity of the Lark Ellen Echo Bowl last Monday night listened to a program of carefully selected numbers.

These consisted of orchestral compositions, old favorites such as the perennial "Poet and Peasant" overture, and the Dvorak "Largo," while of living composers, Charles Wakefield Cadman supplied probably the greatest pleasure of the evening in his "Prairie Sketches," with its several movements—Dawn, Yuccas, Legend of the Palms, and Whispering of Night. The orchestra interpreted these moods with intimate feeling and that the hearers caught the spirit of the composer was evidenced by their hearty response at its conclusion.

A variety was supplied the program by the introduction of two movements from a concerto for horn by Mozart, a little-known work of the great master, who seems to have contributed something to every branch of the musical world, and this concerto written for possibly the most difficult orchestral instrument and played by Huntington Burdick, gave a taste of both the romantic and the merry side of the composer.

At this point Madame Yaw gave her usual demonstration of the echo, which was at its best, and for encore Lark Ellen sang "The Last Rose of Summer."

Four vocalists, all of them residents of the San Gabriel valley, made a change from the stereotyped order and gave selections from Rigoleto in English. The "Caro Nome" was sung by the charming young soprano, Otilie MacIntosh, whose voice exhibited a sweet quality and a range adequate to cover the high D flat demanded. William Ervin's tenor was heard in the "Donna e Mobile," and he established himself at once in the favor of his hearers for his delivery. These singers were joined by Marian King, contralto, and Charles Ross, baritone, in the famous quartet from the same opera. Mr. Robinson brought the program to a close with the "Cortage de Bacchus," by Delibes.

Lauretta Hughes and Lynn Hall Married Sunday

The lovely garden of Dr. and Mrs. Wellesley Magan on West Cameron street was the setting on Sunday afternoon for the informal wedding ceremony of Miss Lauretta Hughes and Lynn John Hall. Rev. Bertrand Hause of the Episcopal church read the service in the presence of immediate friends and relatives.

The bride made an attractive picture in a gown of pink crepe and satin, with matching picture hat. She carried Cecil Brunner roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Earl Sturges (Mary Hardy) as matron of honor wore ecru net with a picture hat of lace. Her bouquet was of pink rosebuds.

Elvin Downs attended as best man and George Cannon and Earl Sturges served as ushers.

Preceding the ceremony Robert Hendricks of Pasadena sang "For You Alone" and "I Promise You." He was accompanied by Miss Dorothy Edwards at the piano.

Following the nuptials tea was served in the gardens.

Mrs. Hall is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther James Hughes of Wendell, Idaho, and for a number of years has been a member of the Covina grammar school faculty, in which capacity she will serve again next year.

Mr. Hall is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Hall of 101 North Second street. He is employed with the General Petroleum company in Los Angeles.

Following a motor trip in the north, Mr. and Mrs. Hall will return to Covina, where they will make their home.

Miss Mary Tully has returned to her home on East Center street from a month's stay at Catalina island, where she was manager of a girls' camp during those weeks. This week Miss Tully is spending at San Pedro at a reunion of Y.W.C.A. workers.

TOWN CHATTER

From all the fascinating plans that the Woman's club has for the coming year, it's going to be difficult to wait until the opening in October.

Such speakers as Harry Carr, Lyman Beecher, and that charming young Turkish woman, Kismet Sirri, who speaks on "The New Deal for Women in Turkey," and music of all types, especially the opening program of the year, on which a well-known Russian string quartet will be presented. The theme of the luncheons will have an international flavor, for they are to be arranged around personalities of literature.

We think that your new car is a honey, Dor, but where in the world did the fem with the yellow overalls get that hat?

That certain young and attractive business girl who has the reputation of being the smartest-dressed of her set received a beautiful birthday cake last week and she took the joke like a gentleman when she found it was temptingly filled with onions. However, her face was plenty crimson for a time, and we don't believe she yet knows who sent it.

We're told: that Archie, the new lifeguard at the plunge, seems to be an added attraction... that Wally and Jimmy had a grand time staying it to Catalina... that Marjorie Miyakawa has a snazzy new Oldsmobile.

Well, they say that you can take the man out of the country, but you can't take the country out of a man. Uncle Billy attended a very swank dinner at the Biltmore 'other nite and when he started to leave he got lost in the spacious halls and wandered around for over an hour before he found his way out.

Whosit-Whasit says that it is so hot that he's decided to take off his skin and sit around in his bones.

Must have been old-home day at Balboa Sunday, for we saw Grayson Merrill and his very popular sister, Eunice... Wynne and a crowd of Wednesday nighters... and Babs McClure the main figure in a mob of attentive swains.

One of Covina's exponents of nudism has finally joined up with a neighboring nudist colony and says that it's certainly worth the fee. That's a matter of opinion, of course.

We nominate Elizabeth Beardsley for the title of the girl with the best disposition. She has recently returned from a vacation up north and on the return trip was blessed (?) with five flat tires and a blowout within four hundred miles and greeted every one of them with a smile. What a girl!

Natural Gas Important California Industry

Supply Should Last for Next Two or Three Decades: 70 Per cent to Utilities

In a state almost totally bereft of burnable coal deposits—the nearest really useful ones are some 800 miles away by rail—but blessed with one of the world's outstanding series of oil horizons, it is an interesting fact that natural gas is in the last few years come to be the premier California fuel.

And from all geological evidences as measured by the most expert methods, investment for that use, which now runs to several hundreds of millions, is secured by a prospect that the supply should be adequate for the next two or three decades at least.

These facts may well be borne in mind in connection with utility investments in the state, for practically all the private companies, with the exception of one, are in the gas as well as the electric business jointly, and even that one, Southern California Edison, has a very material interest in the largest gas line in the state designed to guard the supply of its premier low cost steam generation plant.

Utilities Use Large Amount
Based on latest statistics of the natural gas industry, the utilities are now absorbing somewhere around 70 per cent of the natural gas produced in California and paying for it from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 a year wholesale at the field, the average contract price being close to seven cents a thousand cubic feet.

The gas is used in two ways with a fortunate elastic condition existing as between it and power. The most important is thru general sales. The other is as fuel for steam electric generation plants where, except in emergency periods, it has practically supplanted oil, although all the big electric plant steam boilers are equipped to burn oil or gas interchangeably.

The elastic effect, which is cushioning for the utility supplying both gas and electricity, is found in the fact that in California dry years are also warm years as a rule. And in dry years and warm years both gas use generally and ability of utilities to operate hydroelectric plants falls. Under such conditions, the power production of the steam plants shoots up and the gas that is not needed by the general consumer goes under the electric plant boilers. That protects the low cost power supply and at the same time satisfies the delivery contracts with the oil companies. The balance has been found in every way to be admirable, and has repeatedly resulted for earnings, notably in the case of Pacific Gas and Electric company, which, as the largest California utility, is also the largest joint supplier of gas and electricity.

Pacific Lighting Biggest Distributor
Pacific Lighting corporation, thru its three principal subsidiaries, is the biggest natural gas organization of California, as it was also the first on a large scale. Its territory being principally the Los Angeles basin area, where gas was first widely available, it has a long start thru its own companies and also thru Southern California Gas, which it acquired after the business had begun to be well settled. Pacific Gas came into the business only in the last few years, cooperating in part with Standard Oil company of California. San Diego Consolidated Gas and Electric company, of whose activities visitors to the California Pacific International exposition will have something more than a glimpse, was a late comer, converting its field to natural gas thru arrangement with Pacific Lighting as source of supply.

In all, the gross natural gas business in California as conducted by private utilities is now running to between $60,000,000 and $85,000,000 a year and appears headed higher. There is some municipal activity such as that at Long Beach, but in the main the hazards of the gas business have not been very attractive to the political mind, and even in Los Angeles, where public ownership of power has reached the most advanced stage in the state, gestures toward acquisition of gas facilities have been decidedly half-hearted.

Gas Map Changed

Practically in all instances, distribution of natural gas has come thru conversion of oil-produced artificial gas systems to the natural gas use. This has involved a good deal of obsolescence of artificial gas plants, which has been a more or less continuous bone of contention between the companies and the California railroad commission in the matter of rate bases.

Natural gas in California, measured in British thermal units, has about twice the heat content of the old standard artificial gas which was about 550 btu., and has entailed heavy costs in readjustment of burner apparatus where used, but this task is now behind the California utilities.

Although the Los Angeles basin has been thoroughly familiar with natural gas for many years, it was the discovery of such high pressure oil areas as Ventura avenue and Kettleman hills that really changed the gas map of the state. While a good deal has been said about Kettleman, it probably really was Ventura that turned the trick. Up to the Ventura strike several years before Kettleman was found, the haul was too long, the supply too uncertain, and the investment too great to put natural gas into the San Francisco area, although oil pipe lines were in use.

When Ventura came in, Pacific Gas, which had been watching the southern situation closely, came to the conclusion that it could afford to undertake the venture and make an arrangement, supported by some good discoveries of dry gas in the lower San Joaquin valley, to join with Pacific Lighting and obtain natural gas. That arrangement would have gone thru, but for the fact that the Ventura strike was found, the haul was too long, the supply too uncertain, and the investment too great to put natural gas into the San Francisco area, although oil pipe lines were in use.

$100,000,000 Investment in Lines
Nearly 100 miles nearer San Francisco and northern consuming areas of importance, and with promise of even greater and longer-lived supplies of gas than Ventura and other coastal areas, it caused Pacific Gas to drop its original plan and to set about building its own line, a high-cost, earthquake-proof conveyor of large capacity. That line was ready by late summer of 1929.

Almost immediately, a second line was started thru a joint arrangement between Standard of California and Pacific Gas which in some respects was even larger. The two lines today carry, if required, more than 300,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day. These lines, with numerous connections, are now the source of natural gas in California north of Fresno. Standard Oil which, thru Pacific Public Service, is itself in the utility business, distributes some part of the gas moved northward, but Pacific Gas the major part. Standard has some big industrial customers in the industrial area in the upper reaches where the Sacramento river enters San Francisco bay.

The biggest natural gas line in the state was built jointly by a Pacific Lighting subsidiary and Southern California Edison. It runs from Kettleman southward thru the mountains to a terminal near Los Angeles harbor, and greatly augments a wide network of lines which Pacific Lighting operates both inland and along the coast as far north as Santa Maria. It also is now a mainstay of the supply moved southward thru a relatively new line to San Diego.

With apertures, probably not far from $100,000,000 has been invested in these three big lines.

As would be expected, gas rates in California under such a system are low, and would be a lot lower if the politicians had their way about it. But the rate structures have found protection, both in regulatory principles and in the courts. Industrial gas is exceedingly cheap—as low in some big cases as 11 cents, but usually is sold under a contract which can call for withdrawal of service when the domestic and commercial load rises to such peaks as to threaten to crowd facilities. A very large proportion of the homes and buildings in metropolitan areas of California are gas heated.

Gas, Electricity Vie for Advantages

There is a more or less perpetual battle being waged between gas and electricity, especially since the threat of large surplus of power with the completion of Boulder dam, and with other big public power projects in the offing. This focalizes more in Los Angeles than in the northern areas, where one company generally serves both. The gas sales departments at present are using every effort to capitalize on certain natural economic advantages of their position, for domestically, for larger uses, gas is still probably nearly a third as costly as electricity.

Recently, too, there has been indication that gas sellers might take a leaf from the power books, and make special offers on increased domestic consumption.

One of the established oil fields of California, nearly all of which are well southward in the state, there has as yet been discovered little gas of value on the Pacific coast. Some exploration has been carried on north of Sacramento where geologists see signs of oil, and there has been a little work of the same kind in the state of Washington, but it is not as yet important.

There has been intermittent talk of extending a gas line into Oregon, but considering that the line would be at least 800 miles long with mountains to cross, and that present facilities would probably be taxed to supply it, together with the fact that one of the most advanced experiments in cheap artificial gas in the country has operated with considerable success in Portland, it does not appear likely that the investment will be attempted at any early date, or until there are some new big gas strikes.

A corollary of natural gas has been considerable experimentation with carbureted by-products of the oil business, principally butane shipped in high-pressure containers. Standard Oil tried this extensively in Oregon and Washington and also in California, but found it a definitely losing proposition and dropped the whole business after taking some heavy write-offs and selling out far below its costs.

Pacific Lighting operates several such plants, but largely to give service in communities as yet too small to support the investment of pipe line tie-ins.—Reprinted from Pacific coast edition of The Wall Street Journal, Monday, May 27, 1935.
